

Enzymatic synthesis of diamine compounds

양영현*, 김현중¹, 김용현², 서형민², 신지현³, 박경문³

건국대학교; ¹건국대 생물공학과; ²건국대학교 생물공학과; ³홍익대 바이오화학공학과

(seokor@konkuk.ac.kr*)

Aliphatic diamines are widely used as chemical reagents for monomers of polyamides. They can be made in metabolism of microbes by decarboxylases. In this study, we applied highly sensitive derivatization methods to monitor diamines and their substrates, and made enzymatic reaction to make several important diamines. This will be one of the sustainable methods to make diamines from renewable sources.